What is this squiggly skill?

Networking is 'people helping people'. It's about building a community around your career where what you give and gain from the connection supports your growth and increases your career resilience.

Why it matters

Building a strong network opens doors, provides support, accelerates learning and helps to connect you to new career possibilities.

AI prompt to copy + paste

Act as my personal career board - taking on different personas including challenger, questioner, supporter, ideator, connector and empathiser.

My current career dilemma is XX.

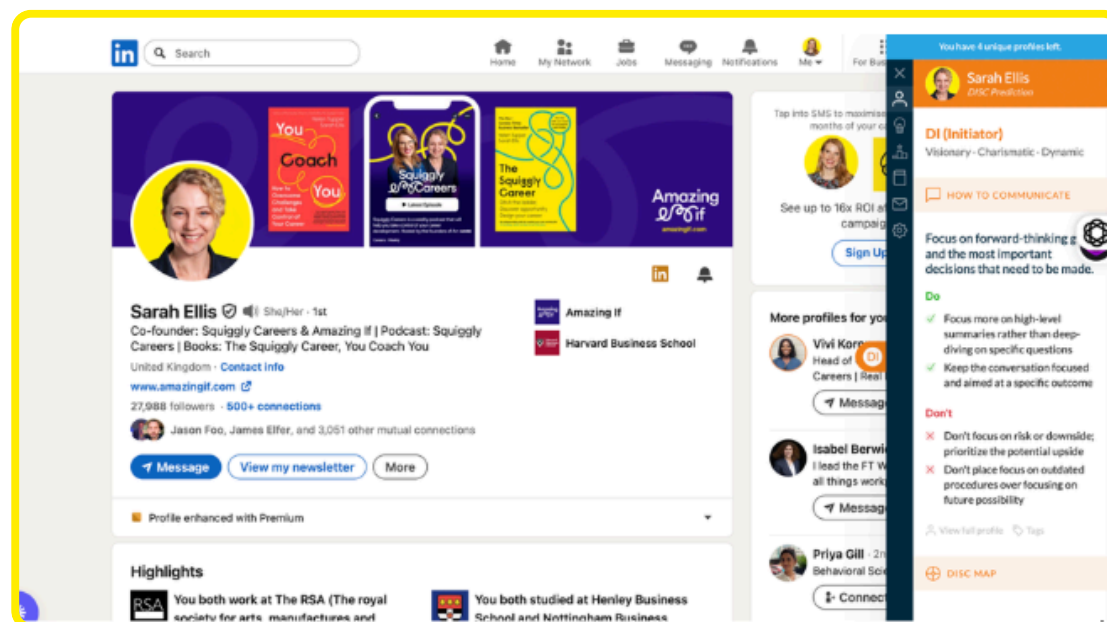

What questions/statements would each of these people ask me, show the data in a table.
